One of the leading objects of this Periodical is to awaken in the public mind a more lively interest in Science. With this end in view it provides original Articles and Reviews, written by Scientific Men, and illustrated when necessary, expounding the grand results of scientific research, discussing the most recent Scientific Discoveries, and pointing out the bearing of Science upon civilization and progress, and its claims to more general recognition, as well as to a higher place in the educational system of the country. There will also be found in "NATURE" complete Abstracts of all important Papers communicated to British, American, and Continental Scientific Societies and periodicals, and Reports of the Meetings of Scientific Bodies at home and abroad. In the columns devoted to Correspondence an opportunity is afforded for the discussion of scientific questions of general and popular interest. The Daily News says:—"‘Nature’ has started well in presenting original matter instead of mere extracts from other magazines, and it promises to fulfil a yet more important requirement in giving a really instructive account of each subject discussed in its pages, instead of a few paragraphs of high-flown language."

The British Quarterly Review says:—"We gladly seize this opportunity of expressing our good wishes for the success of this able and well-edited journal, which posts up the science of the day promptly, and promises to be of signal service both to students and savants."
